

Ira A. Fulton School of Engineering

Change of Major

Students interested in changing their major to one of the majors within the Ira A. Fulton School of Engineering must meet the Fulton School admission requirements for transfer students. Change of major is not guaranteed, and students interested in changing majors are encouraged to make an appointment with an advisor in the program of interest to discuss the probability of success and to develop a plan of action to ensure successful advancement to upper-division courses. All students admitted to a program through a change of major are admitted to the freshman and sophomore (pre-professional) portion of the program. See the Change of Major Approval table below.
